National Chemistry Week Celebration
Indianapolis Children's Museum
Saturday, Nov. 7, 2009, 10am-3pm

The Indiana Section of ACS invites you to celebrate National Chemistry Week! This annual event is a perfect opportunity to share the world of science, and the central role that chemistry plays in science, with scientists in your community!

The NCW theme this year is "Chemistry – It's Elemental," which will focus the attention of students, educators, and communities on the important role that chemistry plays in everyday life, from aluminum cans, to neon lights, to copper in electrical wires. The theme also refers to 2009 being the 140th anniversary of the Periodic Table of the Elements.

Booths from local businesses revolve around the theme and provide a wonderful opportunity to investigate and appreciate the discovery and use of the elements in every aspect of our lives. Scouts participating in a number of structured events at the event will receive the 2009 National Chemistry Week patch!

Watch the Local Section website (<http://membership.acs.org/i/indiana/>) for updated information about our plans and activities. For questions regarding the event, please feel free to email Faith Musko – Fmusko@aitlabs.com
